REPUBLICAN A SETTLED FACT

Opera House Convention Was Composed of the True Wisconsin Republican Delegates.

BOMBASTIC THREATS A FAILURE

Governor's Adherents Fail to Impress the National Republican Party Represented by Their Committee.

(By Staff Correspondent.) Chicago, June 18.—After hours of careful deliberation and the hearing of arguments presented by both the La Follette and the conservative lawyers, the republican national committee late yesterday afternoon decided to seat the conservative delegates in the national convention and allow their names to appear upon the temporary roll call. It was not a cut and dried affair as the La Follette men would make the public believe, but the result of careful thought. By this action the convention in the Fuller opera house at Madison on the evening of May 18 at which George G. Jeffris of Janesville presided is recognized by the national republican party as the republican state convention of duly elected and duly credentialed delegates to a Wisconsin state convention. It gives to the conservative element of the republican party, an element led by Spooner, Quarles, Babcock, Minor, Jeffris, Baensch, Cook, Winkler and hundreds of others of the oldtime wheel horses, recognition that was due them. The legality of the conservative convention was established beyond the shadow of a doubt. The last pegs of the La Follette claims for recognition by the national convention were swept away and while an endeavor will be made to bring the matter before the convention as a whole the mode of procedure has not yet been determined upon and the lack of a minority report of the national committee will be a serious drawback to their aspirations.

Was Unanimous.

The decision of the committee was unanimous. There was not a dissenting vote and the cheer that greeted the decision could be heard outside the building in which the committee held their meeting. Of course the case will be presented to the committee of credentials but this committee is expected to act in the same manner as has the national committee. The lot of the La Follette conferees was securely nailed down by their own efforts in attempting to show the national committee that they used the same methods in appointing their state central committee as did the national convention. The testimony which showed the usurpation of power by the governor, the breaking over of all formalities which have made the republican party a powerful organization in the past and the question of the credentials of the delegates elected but unseated by the La Follette state central committee all acted as a boomerang upon the heads of the administration. Gilbert E. Roe of New York city, Governor La Follette's former lawpartner, who came west some months ago to prepare for the great contest of his former colleague, failed utterly when put to the crucial test. Either he had himself seen the baseness of the administration pretenses or he was unable to bolster up his convictions with facts, but the impression he made upon the members of the committee was far from that desired by the men whose cause he pleaded in a half-hearted manner.

The Committee.

The committee which sat in judgment upon these arguments was not composed of senators and congressmen as has been popularly believed. Neither was it composed of "stalwarts" as the Milwaukee organ of the governor would state. They were business men, shrewd and careful politicians, men who had the best interests of their party and nation at heart. Their decision was not carelessly thought of nor carelessly given. They heard the arguments of the case and weighed the evidence carefully before presenting their decision. The governor may call the result a cut and dried one, but it was the case of a convention of republicans who decided the contest on the basis of the republican doctrines and ideals and the world at large must abide by this decision. The men who decided this case were:

Alabama—J. W. Denmick, Montgomery.

La Follette Men Discredited.

But the case is worse with the administration supporters than on the face of it, as it is declared that in some measure, apart from their absolute rout, they came away from the contest in some measure discredited. Statements they made, it was said, had not been substantiated, while members of the committee, including the presiding officer, had found it necessary to interrupt their pleadings several times and ask for explanations and correct statements in order that wrong conclusions might not be possible. H. W. Chynoweth, it was declared, was a sufferer in this way. Speaking on the question of electors, he is said to have declared that a large proportion of the electors had declared that they would allow their names to be placed on no other ticket than that headed by Gov. La Follette, and that it was possible for the committee to take action which would lose to the party the support of these men. He was interrupted and asked if he meant to imply that the electors would not do the duty they were chosen to do, or if he intended to make a threat. Both of these he denied.

It was also asserted in Chicago that the supreme court of two states of the union have decided that in party political matters the action of the national body of the party is supreme and that in contests reaching the courts the only action open where it is shown that undue influence has not been used on the highest body of the party, is for the court to affirm that party's action. These would establish a precedent, and if the Wisconsin case reaches the state supreme court the only result possible, should the same practice be followed, would be for it to affirm the regularity of the opera house convention as the national committee has done.

Decision for Plaintiff: In the action of John Holombo of Clinton vs. A. and B. Monroe brought by the plaintiff in Justice Earle's court to recover $10 damages alleged to have been sustained owing to the defendants' refusal to surrender a buggy and harness, the court returned a verdict for the plaintiff of $1 and costs. Attorneys Newhouse and Stevens appeared for Holombo and M. P. Richardson for the defendants.

RUSSIAN WARSHIPS ARE ACTIVE

Searching the Seas for Unprotected Japanese Vessels—Many Wounded Brought Into Mukden by the Russians.

(Special by Scripps-McRae.) London, June 18.—A St. Petersburg correspondent of the Central News reports General Stakelberg has escaped from the Japanese by a flank movement and is now out of danger.

More Warships.

Tokio, June 18.—It is reported three Russian warships appeared today off Fuku Yama, Japan, going north. The Japanese steamer was attacked by Russian warships last night, but escaped taking refuge in the harbor of Fuku Yama. Another steamer, Iako Maru, was overtaken by Russians but latter evidently were afraid of the approach of Japanese warships and released the steamer.

Many Wounded.

Mukden, June 18.—The ambulance train from the battlefield at Yafangow yesterday brought in nine officers and 464 wounded. Two hours later another train brought in 29 officers and 270 wounded men. The wounded say the retreat at Yafangow was effected in perfect order.

Running Fight Occurs at Sea.

London, June 18.—Reports reaching London indicate that the Vladivostok squadron has escaped with perhaps the loss of the cruiser Rurik, and that a Japanese army has attacked Gen. Stakelberg's retreating army north of Yafangow.

Bulletins from several Japanese ports tell of a running fight in the fog and storm in the Korean straits in which one Russian cruiser, believed to be the Rurik, was sunk. While these reports are not confirmed, they cannot be denied.

The Vladivostok squadron—or a part of it, at least—was sighted early

FLOWERS SENT TO PAUL IVERSON

They Came All the Way From Finland for the Grave of His Nephew.

Paul Iverson, 216 South Academy street, received today a box of flowers which came all the way from Finland. They were blue and white and were, of course, withered on account of the long journey of three weeks. Some mosses in the small box were fresh and green. The package came from a nephew of Mr. Iverson, who is a sister of H. S. Ringel, the young man who recently lost his life in an automobile accident at Chicago Heights and who was buried here. The flowers were sent to Mr. Iverson to be placed upon the grave.

OLD FOGY WILL NOT BE QUIETED

WANTS PUBLIC TO THINK AND ACT FOR THEMSELVES.

PRESENTS NEW ARGUMENTS

Asks for Explanations of Several Matters That Have Been Lost Sight Of.

To the Editor:
I am glad to see that the person signing himself D. D. understands the police situation. I was afraid until I read his article that I was only a cronic kicker and had viewed the police situation in a two radical point of view. I find however that I am even considered to be more in favor of the police and the present arrangement of affairs. Perhaps I have not said all I wished to out or respect to one man whose illness is a distress to us all. However, if I have broached a subject which has caused other people to commence to think for themselves and will bring some definite results from the council then I am satisfied. I have said and I repeat it. Our present officers are efficient men, but they need a head to charge them and there are not enough of them. There is no one in direct charge of the force at the present time and this is a thing that should not be.

More Police

Right at this point I would like to call attention to the fact that the council some time ago passed an order for the employment of another policeman. Has he been appointed yet? Who is he? Why has he not been appointed? Why the delay, the council has decreed another officer necessary, the city needs him, yet no one has yet been chosen. These are questions I hear asked every day.

What is the answer. The power of appointed or rather nomination lies with the city marshal. Marshal Hogan is out of the city and has not yet appointed any person to fill the office made by the council. This answers the entire list quoted above. Another question: The council have passed a dog license and the ordinance says that the dog catcher or pound master shall be nominated by the city marshal. Thus far we have no appointment and until such an appointment is made the ordinances will not be effective.

Obsolete.

Right in this connection I would like to ask how many people know there is a city ordinance against riding a bicycle on the side walk. How many riders who do know this, violate this ordinance every day of their life. Are any arrests made for this breach of the peace. No records in the municipal court point to any convictions and fines this year. Another ordinance is the playing of base ball in the streets. Of course this, a hardship on the small boy, but still game after game is played every day and the miscreants and youthful ordinance breakers are not reported. How about painting the telegraph and trolley poles within the city limits. I am informed there are such ordinances, but they are not observed. The same holds good to tacking signs to these same poles. If we are going in to have one ordinance lived up, let us have more. Let us have a list of these violated ordinances and see that they are enforced.

Old Blue Laws

Of course a good many people will call these ordinances "Blue Laws." Yet blue laws are often found to mighty effective weapons in many of the cities and states where they have been neglected for years and are then re-discovered to stop encroachments upon civic rights. Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware are always finding some old blue law and bringing it forth from its dusty shelf to a good purpose. But why let the laws become blue laws? If an ordinance is good enough to be passed why is it not good enough to be enforced? these are questions that come into consideration in the talk of increasing and recognizing the police department. If we have not enough officers at the present time to enforce them it should be an argument for a larger police force so they might be enforced. If they are bad ordinances test the legality of them and let them be forever be dropped. If they are good keep them alive and make the city free from all encroachments.

A Little Paint.

In my capacity of general grumbler I would like to call attention to the condition of the two iron electric light posts at the post office. Why are they not painted? Surely the government is rich enough to put a coat of some sort of paint on them before they rust so badly that they have dislodged the steps of that beautiful structure. A stitch in time saves nine, and the matter should be attended to now before it is too late to be of any use. I am called "Old Foggy" by some of my friends and doubtless many of my ideals would lead persons to believe I was a little Foggy on my views. However that is not here nor there, I want to state facts as they appear to me and let people think them out for themselves. Janesville is too beautiful a city to be spoiled by many of the existing evils and if they can be remedied I for one would be glad to be the feeble instrument that created the spirit.

OLD FOGY.

A Trifle Wearing on "County."

The county printing has again been awarded to the "Enterprise." The county know a good thing when they see and read it and are learning they are not bound to give all the public printing to one office regardless of the price or cost to the county and they have not fully decided they are fools although practically called so by one of our leading county papers, a short time since, simply because they did not award the county printing to the office regardless of the cost to the county.—Evanston. THORNTON JOKED ON THE STRETCHER

Janesville Man Hurt in Clown Circus Act at Louisville, But Few Knew—Returns Home.

Bert Thornton of Janesville left the city with the Louisville Foreign-Pitch Wild West show on the 29th of July, last year sustained a serious accident during the afternoon performance of the Sells & Downs circus at Louisville, Ky., on the 12th of this month and returned home yesterday to recuperate. Mr. Thornton was doing a clown tumbling act with awkward effects and sustained what was at first supposed to be a broken leg as the result of a jump from a height to a mattress held in a position by the ring men. So cleverly was the accident concealed that none of the spectators suspected that anything was wrong. "Thornton joked with the spectators as he was being carried out on the stretcher," says the Louisville Journal. After leaving here last year Mr. Thornton remained with the Foreign-Pitch aggregation until it disbanded. He then went to Topeka, Kansas, and wintered with the Sells & Downs people starting out with them on April 23, for this season's tour. He will stay in the city for the home talent Fourth of July circus parade and will again rejoin the Sells people at St. Louis during the second week of August. Fellow performers took up a subscription for him to enable him to return to Janesville, after he was hurt. It was found that though his leg was not broken, it was badly sprained.

A match shoot with unknown traps at unknown angles at Athletic park yesterday afternoon engaged the attention of the Janesville Gun club for several hours. J. H. EXERCISES CLOSE THE SCHOOL YEAR

State School for the Blind Ends Its Regular School Year with Excellent Program.

The closing exercises of the State School for the Blind yesterday afternoon were well attended and were much enjoyed by all who were present. The stage was handsomely decorated in class colors and flowers were largely in evidence.

The opening number, an orchestra selection, was well rendered and thoroughly appreciated. Prayer was offered by Rev. R. C. Denison, and Chester W. Parish rendered a piano solo, which was followed by a carefully prepared address by Stephen C. Lorensten, Roy Carter, "The Wanderer" in good voice, and Leo Lango spoke on "Dangers of Socialism."

A semi chorus of girls sang "The Angels' Trio—Lift Thy Eyes" in a manner which indicated careful training. "The Character of Hamlet" was given by William W. Cochran. The speaker was thoroughly familiar with his topic and handled it well.

Leo J. Lange rendered a difficult violin solo, and Chester W. Parish spoke entertainingly on "Modern Criminology." Walter W. Goetzinger was obliged to sing an encore on the pipe organ. Gustave Kausterman of the state board of control spoke to the school as well as the graduating class. Supt. C. R. Showalter presented the diplomas, and the exercises closed with a double number by the chorus class, and the benediction by Rev. J. H. Tippett.

Many of the scholars departed on the night trains, and the evening was spent in social intercourse. Miss Watson started on the five o'clock for her old home in Melne where she will spend the summer, returning in September to resume her work as teacher. Mrs. Jones of the musical department, started at the same time for Oberlin, Ohio. These ladies have both been connected with the school for more than 30 years.

The other teachers will scatter for the summer. Most of them have been reappointed. Many old scholars were present at the closing exercises. Among them were Miss Anna Brant of Oshkosh, and Herbert Adams from the western part of the state, who for some years was the orchestra leader. Mr. Hershey, the old tuning teacher, was also present.

The school year has been successful under the management of Supt. Showalter, and he seems to be popular with the scholars.

LEAP YEAR DANCE FOR A NEW RANGE

Ladies of Mississippi Golf Club Plan Elaborate Affair for Good Purpose.

On some date during the latter part of June, to be decided later, the ladies of the Mississippi Golf club plan a grand leap year dancing party to raise funds for the purchase of a new kitchen range for the clubhouse. It is possible that the evening of the 28th will be selected. This move on the part of the ladies will doubtless meet with the hearty co-operation of the gentlemen.

BOOM THE COUNTY FARM EXHIBITS

State Fair Will Offer a Special Premium for this Class of Exhibits.

The board managers of the Wisconsin state fair will have a meeting this afternoon at the fair grounds in Milwaukee.

Secretary John M. True has received from the publisher the premium list of the fair and copies are being mailed to the manufacturers, stock raisers, farmers and others in this and other states who are presumed likely to make exhibits at the fair. The premium list is a booklet of 120 pages, containing the statutes and rules and regulations governing the state board of agriculture and the state board of agriculture and the management of the fair, also the detailed schedules of premiums offered in the various departments. A special effort is being made this year in the direction of county exhibits of taking up the calendar for advertising that pasture is abundant this year, that a large crop of hay is already assured, and that as a consequence the outlook for the tiller of the soil is a happy and encouraging one. The success of our farmers, he says, is not dependent upon the raising of any single crop. He suggests that it should be borne in mind that the dairy industry is the most important of all farm industries and he points to the luxurious growth of grasses and the assurance of a heavy crop of hay as proof that the agricultural season in Wisconsin will be a profitable one.

Corn Acreage Increases.

The report says the acreage of corn increased largely, about 4 per cent over last year, but that the yield was in many cases bad and the weather in many cases unfavorable for planting. Had better weather prevailed the increase in the acreage of corn would have been much greater. The acreage of tobacco decreased, that of potatoes somewhat increased and the growing of sugar beets is "booming" in some parts of the state.

The report is based on letters from correspondents throughout the state showing farm conditions as they were June 15. It is as follows:

Wisconsin June Crop Report.

"Most Wisconsin farm crops are now planted," says Mr. True, "or the work so nearly completed as to enable us to complete our estimate of acreage of the principal crops for the season. The acreage of corn in the state is considerably increased—some 4 per cent, over that of last year. This is less than was the wish of farmers; but on account of the wet season and the bad condition of seed, many fields designed for corn have been planted to later crops, or sown to millet or other forage crops. Upon fields remaining the stand of corn is not even, and up to date the young plants have made slow growth. There is also much complaint of the ravages of grub and cut worms.

Less Tobacco Grown.

"The decrease in the acreage of tobacco is marked; the falling off in tobacco-growing counties ranging from 10 per cent to 35 per cent, with a general decrease throughout the state of not less than 20 per cent. Plants are in good condition and farmers are now busy in their setting. The acreage of potatoes will be somewhat increased in the state, though not particularly so in the leading potato-growing counties. In some localities, farmers have been restricted in their planted acreage by the scarcity and high price of seed. There has been many fields designed for corn have been planted to later crops, or sown to millet or other forage crops. Upon fields remaining the stand of corn is not even, and up to date the young plants have made slow growth. There is also much complaint of the ravages of grub and cut worms.

"The raising of sugar beets is becoming a leading industry in some sections of the state, and the general acreage very much increased. The cultivation is not confined to localities near present or prospective sugar factories, but arrangements are being made for long distance shipment to the Memnonia Falls factory, and the industry is "booming" in the vicinity of Janesville and Chippewa Falls.

The cultivation of flax has been confined to a few counties for the past few years, and in these, even, the acreage is decidedly decreased this season. The acreage of peas and beans, never large, remains about the same as last year, while buckwheat will be considerably sown upon low lands, designed for corn, but not fit for that crop.

Condition of Crops.

"Winter grain—wheat and rye have maintained their standing during the past month, and are reported respectively at 85 and 90 per cent of a normal crop. Spring wheat, barley, and oats have usually made a good and healthy growth, and are promising.

"They are reported as spring wheat, 94 per cent; barley, 97 per cent and oats, 98 per cent.

Luxuriant Pastures.

"There has been sufficient rain for a continual growth of grass in meadows and pastures in most parts of the state, and the grass crop was never in more vigorous condition. Old meadows may be somewhat thin, but old tame meadows are seldom profitable and not an indication of the best farm management. An abundant hay crop is already assured while the surplus feed in pastures is an excellent provision against possible drouth later.

Abundant Strawberries.

"The strawberry crop, just coming upon the market, is an abundant one. Apples are falling quite heavily but the amount of young fruit on trees was in excess of requirements or a full crop, and the prospects remain good. As a whole the reports received indicate encouraging crop conditions throughout the state.

Dairying Leading Industry.

"It should be borne in mind that dairying is easily the leading farm industry of the state, and that the grass crop is the most important and valuable one raised by the farmers. But little grain is now raised in Wisconsin for shipment outside of the state, and as a result the success of our farmers is not dependent upon the raising of any single crop."

FARM PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHTER

SOIL WORKERS HAVE A GOOD SEASON IN VIEW.

JUNE CROP REPORT IS OUT
Secretary True Compiles Data From Correspondents Throughout the State.

Notwithstanding the discouraging reports from throughout the state regarding the corn crop, and in many of other adverse conditions of less importance, Secretary John M. True of the state board of agriculture predicts in his June crop report, issued yesterday, a season of abundant harvest for the farmers of the state and consequent prosperity in all lines of trade and industry dependent upon agriculture for their success. He concludes his report by observing that pasture is abundant this year, that a large crop of hay is already assured, and that as a consequence the outlook for the tiller of the soil is a happy and encouraging one. The success of our farmers, he says, is not dependent upon the raising of any single crop. He suggests that it should be borne in mind that the dairy industry is the most important of all farm industries and he points to the luxuriant growth of grasses and the assurance of a heavy crop of hay as proof that the agricultural season in Wisconsin will be a profitable one.

Corn Acreage Increases.

The report says the acreage of corn increased largely, about 4 per cent over last year, but that the yield was in many cases bad and the weather in many cases unfavorable for planting. Had better weather prevailed the increase in the acreage of corn would have been much greater.

The acreage of tobacco decreased, that of potatoes somewhat increased and the growing of sugar beets is "booming" in some parts of the state.

Local Growers Say Rain Is Needed

To Bring About Good Supplies of Fruits—Berry Crop Very Poor.

Yesterday was a busy day for the merchants and time was too valuable to go through the market reports to make changes. Everything was on the same list as the day before and the supplies while large at the opening of the day were reduced to almost nothing at the close and the merchants will show an entirely new line this morning. The trade was good and everything in sight was purchased, the hotels and restaurants being compelled to serve all sorts of dishes to feed the people.

Strawberries were in good quantity and the fruit was fine. The home shipped are not as large as was expected and many of the growers are fearing they will be disappointed in the outcome of the crop. A good rain is needed and unless it comes within the next few days there will be a large falling off in the number of berries to be harvested by the local growers.

WHERE ARE THEY AT?

The unanimous action of the republican national committee in seating Senators Spooner and Quarles, and their colleagues, will settle in the minds of a good many republicans in Wisconsin the question of what constitutes the republican party in the state.

This unprejudiced tribunal has placed the seal of approval upon the republican convention held at the opera house in Madison, May 19, and their decision will be endorsed by the republican convention when it assembles next Tuesday. There is only one republican party in the state, and it now remains to be seen what La Folletteism will do. If unwise enough to bolt, the responsibility will rest with the bolters.

The republican national convention cannot be criticised with impunity, either by the governor or his supporters. This convention represents 16,000,000 intelligent republican voters. The question for Wisconsin republicans to decide now is: Which is greater, La Folletteism or the republican party? The decision rendered, is from the standpoint of justice, and every republican, who is not blinded by prejudice, will endorse it.

The supreme court may be called upon later to give an opinion on legal points, but it matters not what this opinion may be. The party court has already decided and republican sentiment is satisfied with the decision.

It may be possible for La Follette to divide the vote in the state and he may succeed in defeating the party; but there will be no glory in the effort, and nothing but shame in the results. If wise, he will retire gracefully from the field, and attempt by loyalty in the future to redeem himself.

The republicans will be with the republicans of the nation. They have trained under the same banner to these many years, and they do not question the judgment and integrity of party leaders, and moved to certain victory both in the state and nation.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

W. C. Patterson, President of the Los Angeles National Bank, recently delivered an address before the California Banker's Association on "Financial Futilities." So many practical things were suggested that a little circular has been issued and mailed to every bank clerk on the Pacific coast, containing a part of the address which was of special interest to them, and entitled, "Stroke of the Clock."

It contains so much good advice, not only to bank clerks, but to all young men that it was published in the "Financier." The Gazette is pleased to reproduce it, and commend it to careful perusal, by every young man who is interested in his future welfare.

In one of the large Los Angeles financial institutions there is employed a young man for whom the next few months will determine whether his life is to make for success or failure. With all the boldness, assurance and confidence in the infallibility of self which are characteristic of youth, he has walked firmly and buoyantly along the easy early path, and today stands, all unconscious of his peril, upon the edge of the chasm of obscurity and failure.

He is a "stroke-of-the-clock" man. Every morning, at the moment he is required to be at the office, he disappears.

In the afternoon, at exactly the moment his labors are supposed to end, he disappears.

All through the day he does his work with one eye on the clock. No fault is found with the way he does his work. He is endowed with more than the average amount and quality of brain, he is conscientious in his work, and has many of the qualifications which make for success.

Whereto, then, lies his danger? Just here: He is unconsciously drifting upon the shoals of mediocrity. He is unconsciously building a wall which will in the years to come hopelessly separate him from the world of achievement, honor and independence. His blood is slowly becoming poisoned by the mistaken idea that he does right to give just what his contract calls for—no more, no less. He is living up to the letter of the law, and cannot therefore be reprimanded; but he is forgetting the spirit of the law, inexpressible in words.

If he has any personal interest in the company's business aside from the doing of just that work for which he is engaged and paid, it is not apparent to the officers who are watching him. He does not know, does not care to know, has made no effort to know anything about the business outside of the work delegated to him. His labors end at a certain hour; others may be compelled to remain several hours later to finish their work; but he never remains to see if he can be of service to them, or to the office. To be sure, it is not his business.

But the business world does not want that kind of men—it is over-crowded with them now.

The man who forgets that there are clocks; the man whose going-home time is indicated by the completion of the work of the office as a whole; the man who is on hand before the wheels of business start to assist in the starting process if called upon to do so; the man who forgets himself in his eagerness to advance the interests of his employer; the man who does more than is expected of him, and who works for the very joy of working—that is the kind of man the world need today; that is the kind of man who will win the respect, the confidence and the consideration of his employers; that is the kind of man who will reach the top and become a man among men, instead of a groveler in the dust of lowly mediocrity.

About ten members will take another cross country run this evening.

The athletic work of the Y. M. C. A. will not break up altogether during the summer months as formerly, but the vacant lot to the west of the building will be converted into an open air gymnasium. The owners have granted the institution the right to use the ground and if Physical Director Ward's plans culminate, as they undoubtedly will, being supported by all interested either in the association or athletics, the place will be cleaned up and leveled. The field events of broad and high jumping, shot-putting and pole-vaulting will be among the exercises. Horizontal and parallel bars will also be erected and if a sufficient number can be interested out door basket ball will be played. The work will not be regular class work but more for recreation and several members are deafious of laying out a tennis court.

About ten members will take another cross country run this evening.

The man who forgets that there are clocks; the man whose going-home time is indicated by the completion of the work of the office as a whole; the man who is on hand before the wheels of business start to assist in the starting process if called upon to do so; the man who forgets himself in his eagerness to advance the interests of his employer; the man who does more than is expected of him, and who works for the very joy of working—that is the kind of man the world need today; that is the kind of man who will win the respect, the confidence and the consideration of his employers; that is the kind of man who will reach the top and become a man among men, instead of a groveler in the dust of lowly mediocrity.

Just this: When his hair is sprinkled with white, and the pathway of life stretches behind him, he will be at some desk, doing his work as of old, with one eye on the clock—unknown, unhonored and unsung. A negative character—noting in him to reprimand, nothing in him to commend. The world would have gone along just as well without him. He has been in it, but not of it. There will never come to him the inexpressible thrill that comes when a great trust is reposed in a man; he will never have known the unspeakable happiness of receiving the congratulations of his friends upon the occasion of his promotion; he will never have known the matchless joy and peace and gladness that comes when one closes the desk at night, turns out the lights, locks the door and goes home saying to himself: "I have this day accomplished something!" And he will never have been uplifted and glorified by hearing from his employer's lips those two priceless words: "Well done!"

There can be but one result for the "stroke-of-the-clock" man—failure. He will always be an employee who will not even know the measure of independence that accompanies a position of trust. He will never be an employer, but will be a nomad, remaining awhile in one place only to be routed out by some man who is ignorant of clocks and who will pass him on the road toward success. And when the last page of the book is reached, and the last entries are made and the account is closed, he cannot leave that record with the feeling that it will be opened when he is gone. No one will care to look into that book—it will be utterly valueless; for it is nothing but the record of one who existed, but did not live—who was never a part and par-

BRIEF NOTES ABOUT TOWN

Auto Trip from Chicago: Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Dudley returned yesterday from an automobile trip to Chicago. The former attended the reunion of the alumnus of Rush Medical college. They found the roads very dusty. The trip required about eight hours.

No Sympathy for Him: George Beesley of Emerald Grove, a hair brother of John Beesley who has been arrested in Rockford, was in the city today. He said that he had known that John was in this country for some time and that it did not surprise him when he was caught.

Gets Coal Contract: The state board of control awarded the contract to furnish the state School for the Blind in this city with 1,500 tons of Wilmington lump coal to W. H. MacLean, at $3.20 per ton.

A Twelve Pounder: Out at Lake Koshkonong the Janesville fishermen are doing what they can to sustain the city's reputation. Al Guy yesterday sent in to J. P. Baker a twelve pound pickerel which he landed unaided and alone.

"Fuller 'n Johnson": Harmonies in things terrestrial sometimes occur in the most unexpected places. A man staggering under a burden of too much "red eye" clambered aboard a wagon near Franklin street yesterday and was driven off in a hurry with his feet dangling over that portion of the wagon-box which bore the names of the muckers—"Fuller & Johnson."

Marriage Licenses: Marriage licenses have been issued to John Hemming and Catherine Watson, Janesville; Chas. Katzlass and Anna Schmetz, both of Elgin; Elmer J. Seefeld and Sarah Ham, both of Beloit; Earl Richards, town of Center, and Mabel Ellis, town of Plymouth; Chas. R. Hall, Chicago, and Lillian E. Fessenden, Clinton; Harry R. Blay, Cottage Grove, Wis., and Flora M. Richards, town of Center; John P. O'Grady, Milwaukee, and May Hogan, Janesville.

Fell on Sharp Stone: Yesterday while playing with several of her little playmates, Nelle Barry, daughter of James Harry, who resides on South River Street, fell on a sharp stone mauling a severe wound in her scalp. It bled freely and several stitches had to be taken.

Bakery Horse Takes a Sprint: A horse attached to one of Benson & Lane's delivery wagons while standing near the bakery became frightened at Dr. Dudley's automobile and made a two block run up Wall street with the wagon tipped on its side, scattering bread, doughnuts, cookies and pies in all directions.

Sunday Meeting: There will be the regular men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday at 3 o'clock. The meetings are supplying a want in the lives of many men, though the practical thoughts and suggestions relating to every day life, that are brought out by the many able speakers in charge, are very interesting. Young men are especially urged to be present.

AN IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL SERVICE

Conducted at St. Mary's Church This Morning for Miss Margaret Coen.

Impressive services for the late Miss Margaret A. Coen were held at St. Mary's church at 10 o'clock this morning. Rev. W. A. Goebel celebrated the requiem high mass. There was a large attendance of sympathizing friends and relatives of the deceased present at the last sad rites. Rev. Goebel paid a high tribute to the character of the departed young lady in his sermon, as follows: She was always faithful in the performance of her duties and her service to God. We can all testify of her love for her parents and friends. Sorrow and grief oppress their hearts today when they recall her loving care, and the faithful lessons laid before them by her words and example. In her sickness she was called upon to undergo many trials which she endured with patience and ever had a kind word for loving friends and dear ones who did what they could to make her suffering lighter. The floral offering was one of great beauty, and was contributed by the many friends of the deceased. About twenty-five of the Boot & Shoe Workers' union attended the funeral in a body. H. C. Dreyer is seriously ill in Beloit.

Mr. Robertson of Lynn, Mass., the general organizer of the International Boot & Shoe Workers' union, is in the city on business.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Walrath celebrated their first wedding anniversary in a quiet way last evening at their home on South Main street. About thirty friends assembled. In keeping the occasion, and after enjoying light refreshments the guests left at a late hour with best wishes for their host and hostess, leaving many pretty remembrances.

Three of them and they are just screaming funny. Not the ordinary kind of farces but the ones that make you hold your sides with laughter, when you see them. This will certainly be a day long to be remembered.

A SOLDIER OF COMMERCE

By JOHN ROE GORDON

Copyright, 1902, by F. H. Toombs

"Oh, thou great and wily dealer in false women, tell me how I can obtain this rich reward!"

"Is it not possible that somewhere in this vessel are goods that have been overlooked and that Blartekis would buy?"

"You mean—that I am to say that such is the case?"

"Exactly. You know that his daughter always accompanies him to purchase goods."

"I know. Well, what then?"

"Go to the bazaar. The bands are still playing. There is still life in the fair, for it is not yet midnight. Tell Blartekis that you have discovered some of the finest linen hidden in the bottom of the vessel and that you must start from here before morning, as an important business demands you at Astrakhan."

"By the beard! I know not what plan you have, but a thousand pieces of gold are not picked up in a year. What will you do in the meantime?"

"Awant you here."

"Very well. I will go." Hassan put aside his ordinary garments and replaced them with his best, which he always wore to the bazaars. He bade Hafiz adieu and walked away. Ignatz Blartekis was about to close his bazaar when the well known figure of Hassan walked in.

"My friend," said Hassan, "I have come in a great hurry to see you. It could have been nothing but the great admiration I have for you and your lovely daughter that would bring me here at this hour. But as I was about to sail for the Caspian I discovered in the bottom of my vessel boxes of the finest linen—better even than I brought you last—from the looms of that far country in the north that makes the finest linen. It was not like the last, assigned to you; but was placed on board for me to sell to any one who would purchase. I do not wish to tarry till the morning, for I have cargo awaiting me at Astrakhan. I have already got my vessel in readiness to sail, and the men are having their last good sleep until we reach the Caspian. I thought of you, as you have been my friend. You have made many purchases. Will you not come and look at the linen, that I may at once set sail?"

"But it is night," said Blartekis. "In the morning I will see it."

"Nay, I cannot wait. I have just time to reach Astrakhan to take this cargo, which will be a rich one."

"I must call my daughter. It is her delight to accompany me and examine goods and make purchases."

He called Koura. Hassan gulped down an exclamation as he saw her beauty.

"What is it, father?"

"This good Hassan, who brought us some of our best goods, is about to start for the Caspian and has discovered in his vessel some of the finest linen he brought to sell. He asks that we go look at it. If we do not, some one else will get it. It is late, and the wharfs are dangerous. What do you say?"

"As for the lateness of the hour, it must not interfere with a good purchase. Hassan can walk the wharfs, and with him we should be safe."

"Well spoken," said Hassan.

They were soon ready to start. The streets of the fair were almost deserted. The last boat had stopped its blare, and the lights were being extinguished in the bazaars. The coffee houses alone showed signs of life. The merchant accompanied Hassan to the wharf and on board his vessel. He led them to the cabin and offered wine.

Blartekis sat in the cabin and his daughter near him. Hassan, looking over the merchant's shoulder, saw the figure of Hafiz Effendi. He obeyed a signal.

"Permit me to depart and bring the linen," said he and walked out.

"It is strange, father," Koura was saying, "that I see no evidence that Hassan has made preparations to start. No sail is raised."

"He told me the men were taking a good sleep before starting. I believe it."

"A scarf was thrown around Koura's mouth and her eyes were blinded with folds of silk. She heard a groan from her father as Hafiz Effendi rushed upon him and buried a dagger in his heart.

"Quick! Faster the girl! Bring me rope!" he whispered to Hassan, who was horrified at the terrible act.

He realized that he was now in the power of Hafiz Effendi, for the murder had been done on his boat and he had lured the merchant to his doom. He silently obeyed, and the girl was bound and placed upon a divan. Then with deft fingers they wound cloths around the body of the merchant, weighted it with stones and hurled it into the river.

"Now," said Hafiz Effendi in his blandest tones, "listen and obey the commands of my command."

"It is horrible!" said Hassan. "I did not think!"

"Harken, fool! If you are found with this girl on your boat, you will be shot. If Blartekis is missed, as he surely will be, who visited his bazaar to sell him linen that did not exist? It will be to your advantage to go, and go at once."

"I am in a trap," said Hassan desperately, "and must obey."

"Keep the girl where she will not be discovered. Still as rapidly as possible to the Caspian and search for a vessel of the Persian type, which will be sailing without any direction or lying at anchor. Her master's name is Kurnak. When you have found him, your

WARSHIPS TO HELP MINISTER Demonstration to Be Made During Negotiations with the Porte.

Washington, June 18.—A formidable fleet of United States warships will pay a visit to Turkish waters about the time Mr. Leishman, the American minister, takes up his negotiations with the Porte to insure for Americans in Turkey the same rights as are enjoyed by citizens of some privileged European nations. This will be in a few weeks. The battleship squadron commanded by Rear Admiral Barker has sailed from Lisbon on a visit to the ports of Greece and Austria. After spending a few weeks there, Admiral Barker will be reinforced by the European squadron under Rear Admiral Jewell, and this fleet will visit the sultan's ports.

TAKING THE BULL BY THE HORNS

OR

A Tale of Reducing a Stock of Ready-to-Wear Suits

The majority of the Suits we have were bought this Spring, and many of them are made of the new manish materials that promise to be popular for Fall wear. We have an enviable reputation for carrying Suits as good as money can buy, reliable, well made, stylish. We show a large variety, such as Scotch Suitings, Voile, Kersey, mixtures, etc.

During the next two months we will close out every Suit in stock, and our PRICES will do it. This year the suit business with us commenced very early and we have had a long season of selling. The time has come for doing something BIG in order to sell Suits in large bunches.

We have put the Suits into 7 lots and the majority of them average much less than half price. The lot numbers have been put on the different racks and every suit marked in plain figures on a large tag so that anybody can see just exactly what we are doing. We quote the following prices:

Lot 1, $4.75

Lot 2, $6.85

Lot 3, $11.50

Lot 4, 10.00

Lot 5, $15.00

Lot 6, 14.00

Lot 7, 17.50

This means a big money loss to us and a great benefit to customers.

J.M. BOSTWICK & SONS.

NEWS OF THE STATE IN BRIEF.

Edward Blanchette, a prominent Ingram man, was instantly killed Friday evening while blasting stumps.

The turners of Princeton on Friday celebrated the thirty-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the organization.

August Van Slamburk of Fond du Lac sues the M. D. Wells company, charging an accident to his minor son, who caught his hands in a heel dressing machine and lost both index fingers.

Miss Maude Brown lies in comatose condition at Empire, near Fond du Lac, as the result of a runaway on Thursday, and may die. In moments of semi-consciousness she mutters about an automobile.

A gang of burglars infest Racine and vicinity. The hardware store of James Murphy was entered and $200 worth of property taken. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoernel was visited during their absence.

Moy Wong, a Racine Chinaman, charged with assaulting 6 year old Mary Larson, defended by Moy Stone of Chicago, was held to the municipal court for trial in bonds of $1,000. He will get the ball in a few days.

J. J. Morris of Fond du Lac was tried on Friday on a charge of keeping his market open on Sunday. The verdict was not guilty; Two members of the butchers' union testified that they bought meat at the place on Sunday, but admitted they did so to get evidence.

The case of Charles T. Wright of Racine against the Union National bank there has been transferred to Rock county for trial. Mr. Wright sues the bank and its directors to recover about $30,000, which money he claims is due from a settlement of his business over ten years ago, when he was sent to prison.

The ever-present subject of taxes is very suggestively discussed by Winthrop More Daniels in a paper upon "The Ethics of Taxation" in the June Atlantic. After tracing with vivacious pen some of the humors, inconsistencies, and wrongs of our present system, Mr. Daniels concludes in an optimistic vein, "Fortunate is it for us that the lines upon which the reform of direct taxes must proceed have been so clearly marked out, and that some of our commonwealth have already taken pronounced steps in the right direction. The taxation of real estate by and for the local governments exclusively, the practical exemption of credits and chattels in individual hands, and the relegation both of the administration and the proceeds of corporate taxation to the state governments, foreshadow the financial reform to which we may sometime attain."

Letter to Mr. J. Murray, Janesville, Wis.

Dear Sir: Devoe is worth $1 or $5 a gallon, put on, how much is another paint worth?

Depends on how many gallons you've got to put on, to be equal to one of Devoe.

Mr. J. J. Hall, Sheffield, Pa., painted two houses one coat, five years ago, lead-and-oil, took 40 gallons.

Last summer bought 40 gallons Devoe for same houses; had 10 gallons left.

Mr. N. Avery, Delhi, N. Y., owns two houses exactly alike; painted one with Devoe; took 6 gallons. The other with some other; took 12 gallons.

What'd you give for those off paints? Bear in mind, you've got to pay for the painting. Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOE & CO.,
